WASHINGTON.

A Quiet Day in Both Houses of Congress.

THE PAN ELECTRIC INVESTIGATION

Three Reports to be Submitted—The New Assistant Secretary of State—Manning's Health Improved—Notes

SENATE

WASHINGTON, June 29.—Hawley, from the committee on military affairs, reported back the joint resolution appointing Gen. J. H. Sewell, of New Jersey, Gen. Martin L. McMahon, of New York, and Capt. John L. Mitchell, of Wisconsin, managers of the national homes for disabled soldiers, to fill vacancies. Passed.

Beck introduced a bill to authorize the postmaster general to appoint and remove postmasters of the third class who are now appointed and removed by the president. Referred to the postoffice committee.

The senate then, on motion of Plumb, resumed consideration of the president's veto of the bill to quiet titles of settlers on Des Moines lands, and after arguments was passed over the president's veto by the requisite two-thirds majority; yeas 34, nays 15.

Plumb submitted the conference report on the army appropriation bill. The conference report was explained by Allison. The bill now appropriates about $150,000 less than it did when it first passed the house. The report was agreed to.

Allison submitted the conference report on the bill to amend Pacific railroad acts, and it was agreed to.

The senate then, on motion of Allison, proceeded to consider the bill making appropriations for the legislative, executive and judicial expenses of the government.

Plumb, from the conference committee on the bill making appropriations for the department of agriculture, submitted a report, which was agreed to.

Allison gave notice that he would ask the senate to finish the legislative bill to-morrow. Adjourned.

HOUSE

WASHINGTON, June 29.—Burns of Missouri, from the committee on appropriations, reported the general deficiency bill and it was referred to the committee of the whole. It appropriates $6,06[illegible],845.

The house then went into committee of the whole, Reagan of Texas in the chair, on the sundry civil bill.

Springer of Illinois moved to increase from $90,000 to $200,000 the appropriation for protecting public lands from fraudulent entries. Springer said his desire was to uphold the aims of Commissioner Sparks and Secretary Lamar in their efforts to expose frauds perpetrated on the public domain, and to reclaim thousands and millions of acres from the fraudulent grasp of syndicates. After debate Springer withdrew his motion, and a motion made by Laird of Nebraska to strike out the clause was rejected.

Carey of Wyoming defended the cattle grazers and settlers in Wyoming from the abuse which have been showered upon them. He declared that they were just as honest and upright men as could be found on the floor of the house. He challenged the presentation of any evidence except that made by liars and perjurers which would show that they had prevented any man from settling on any quarter section of land open to settlement.

Pending further action the committee rose.

Blount of Georgia submitted the conference report on the postoffice appropriation bill and it was agreed to. The senate recedes from its amendment which authorizes the postmaster general to contract for inland and foreign steamboat mail service when it can be confined in one route where the foreign office is not more than [illegible]00 miles distant from the domestic office, at the same terms as inland steamboat service. The senate also recedes from its amendment increasing by $80,000 the appropriation for the railway postal car service. The senate also recedes from its foreign mail service amendment, known as the "subsidy" amendment.

Bragg of Wisconsin submitted the conference report on the army appropriation bill, and it was agreed to.

Hatch of Missouri submitted the conference report on the agricultural appropriation bill; agreed to. Adjourned.

THE PAN ELECTRIC

Three Documents in the Form of Reports to be Presented.

WASHINGTON, June 29.—Three documents in the nature of reports will be presented to the house by the Pan Electric telephone committee, but as neither will be signed by a majority of the committee, technically speaking there will be no "report" before the house for action. The report drawn up by the chairman will be signed by himself and Messrs. Oates, Eden and Hall, all democrats. Ranney has secured the signatures of Messrs. Millard, Hanback and Moffatt, all republicans, to his report, while Hale, democrat, has presented his views in an individual report. Chairman Boyle's report will not be made public before Thursday.

In the report signed by republican members testimony is cited to show how the Pan Electric company was organized, and three and a half millions of its stock given to gentlemen for the use of their name and reputation. The opinion of Senator Garland, declaring that the Rogers patents do not infringe upon the Bell patent, is quoted, with the statement that it had been gotten because the Pan Electric could not sell rights, and it was intended to be an inducement which led large numbers of persons to pay in money, part of which was divided among Garland and his associates. At the same time the Pan Electric knew that their instruments did infringe on the Bell patent. The report then refers to the postal telegraph bill as explaining the motives of the Pan Electric organizers, and states that two millions of stock was held by members of congress. When it was expected that the bill would be subjected to legislation it is charged that the Pan Electric people, including Garland, tried to get congressional endorsement for the scheme, and evidence is cited where it touches upon the effort to secure the appointment of young Rogers as house electrician. It is alleged that Senators Garland and Harris, and General Johnston lent themselves personally to accomplish this.

The report then remarks on the sale of state rights to sub-companies, and says: "The Bell company sued the sub-companies, and the Pan Electric company declined to defend on the ground that it had no money. Thereupon they determined to secure the name of the United States to bring suit against the Bell company to frighten it and drive it to buy peace. So they obtained permission when they wanted it, and as they wanted it, without any preliminary examination worthy of name, without the usual investigation and in defiance of all rules and practices of the department, and in direct disregard of a decision made within a month by its head. Had all the facts developed before the committee been known at that time," says the report, "the department of justice would have driven these petitioners from its doors for public sentiment would have constrained it to do so."

The report, in commenting upon Garland's share in the transaction, declares that if he had made the inquiries he ought to have made, he could not have granted the application within twenty-four hours and without reference. It is alleged that so far from making a careful examination of the subject, he never even read the petition.

"Taking all these things together," says the report, "it does not admit of doubt that the solicitor general, acting as attorney general, was by some means led to grant this application without the usual reference or inquiry, without any pretense of competent examination, with unexampled speed, and in violation of the practice of the department. In an ordinary case such action would be held to be positive proof of fraud, at least proof of gross negligence which in a person of his position, is equivalent to fraud. Upon these facts, none of which can be disputed, no jury would hesitate. It is enough, however, to say that it cannot be tolerated that the business of the government can be so conducted. It cannot escape observation that Senator Harrison and Mr. Casey Young acted just as men would act if already assured of what was being [illegible] of the solicitor general is most easily [illegible] for on the assumption that he understood the matter in advance, and had predetermined his course of action."

The report then recurs to the subject of the opinion furnished by the attorney general. It charges that it was written with a view to deceive people in the southwest, and says that it was a shrewd view that people so believed, but that he (the attorney general) did not. The report goes on: "The best that can be said of him is that he lent himself to the scheme because he got his stock for nothing. He had not strength to deny what his associates asked, nor to return the stock and cease to be an associate. He had not the boldness to do, personally, what they thought was a fair service for the stock he kept, but it was done by his department, as such a thing never was done before. The plea is that the parties concerned did not think they were doing wrong, but the government, which expects to be respected, cannot permit such things to be done, such influence to be sought for, or such personal interests to exist and avail. It is not enough for these personally interested, who ought to have prevented it, to say they did nothing and meant to do nothing."

The report estimates the expenses of the [illegible] if tried on its merits at no less than $[illegible].

MINORITY REPORT BY HALE.

Hale of Missouri makes a minority report, in which he says that while he concurs in many of the statements and conclusions of that part of the committee represented by Chairman Boyle, yet he cannot concur in everything it contains. To such information of the Pan Electric company the evidence shows conclusively, says the report, that it was a purely speculative adventure, and evidence could not be found to prove that the gentlemen connected with Rogers ever anticipated or intended that their official positions would or should be used in any way to affect legislation or otherwise to further advance their enterprise. The opinion of Attorney General Garland, it is held by Hale, was like that of any other attorney employed by an individual. It does not appear that it was intended to further the sales of stock without disclosing his relations to the company, nor that any person was deceived or misled by it. As to the attorney general's connection with the suit, the report finds that the evidence is overwhelming and conclusive in showing that he has nothing whatever to do with it.

WASHINGTON NEWS ITEMS.

THE GENERAL DEFICIENCY BILL.

WASHINGTON, June 29.—The general deficiency appropriation bill reported to the house fails to appropriate the $1,500,000 necessary to meet the expense of government transportation over non-subsidized branches of land grant railroads. The estimate under the head of Central Pacific railroad included an item of $785,[illegible] from the war department for transportation of troops and supplies during the present fiscal year. The postoffice department also sent in an item of $161,173 on the same account during the next fiscal year. The postoffice department also sent in an item of $618,714 for mail transportation over the same branches. Auditor Williams was heard before the committee, and explained that these appropriations were made necessary by a decision of the supreme court to the effect that compensation could not be withheld from a railroad on account of service performed on non-subsidized branch lines. The committee, however, has disallowed the items on grounds that the real issue has never been investigated in court, and that the government has a right to set off as against the claims of the company, millions of dollars annually paid by the government on account of interest on railroad bonds.

NEW ASSISTANT SECRETARY.

WASHINGTON, June 29.—William L. Smith, assistant secretary of the treasury, has tendered his resignation to the president, to take effect July 1. The president has selected as his successor Hugh S. Thompson, governor of South Carolina, and will send his nomination to the senate to-morrow. Thompson is said to be a man of ability, and in entire accord with the president's policy on all public questions. He has been prominently identified with the educational interests of his state and is now serving his second term as its governor. He has resigned that office and expects to be able to assume the duties of his new office as soon as confirmed. Smith said to-day that he relinquished his present position voluntarily and with the best feeling toward the president and all his associates, solely in his own interests.

PENSION FOR GEN. WRIGHT'S DAUGHTER.

WASHINGTON, June 29.—Senator Dolph to-day introduced a bill granting a pension of $50 a month to Eliza E. Wright, only daughter of Gen. George Wright, who during the war commanded the forces in California, and who in [illegible] while on [illegible] his wife [illegible] was lost by the wreck of the steamer Brother Jonathan. Mrs. Owen's brother, Col. Tom Wright, was killed during the Modoc war. She is the only surviving child of Gen. Wright.

BILLS APPROVED AND VETOED.

WASHINGTON, June 29.—The president has approved the act to legalize the incorporation of national trades unions, an act granting the franking privilege to Julia D. Grant, an act to remove the political disabilities of J. G. Blount of Mississippi, and ten miscellaneous bills, including the bill to pension the widow of Admiral Semmes. The president has vetoed two private pension bills.

DOES NOT PAN OUT MUCH.

WASHINGTON, June 29.—The endorsement of President Cleveland's administration by Oregon does not pan out much, after all. The democratic governor-elect has written a letter to friends in this city, in which he distinctly denies that the administration question entered into the contest at all, but says the Chinese question was the only issue upon which the battle was fought and won.

AN ATTEMPT TO OVERRIDE VETOES.

WASHINGTON, June 29.—The invalid pension committee of the house to-day considered the presidential veto messages. They were referred back to a subcommittee and it is the present intention to select the strongest and most meritorious cases, and make an attempt to pass the bills over the vetoes.

MANNING'S HEALTH IMPROVED.

WASHINGTON, June 29.—Secretary Manning, who is still at Hot Springs, Va., telegraphs to [illegible] as follows: "Contradict the story in the New York World of Sunday, about my health. I am much better than when I left Washington."

PASSED OVER THE VETO.

WASHINGTON, June 29.—The senate passed the Des Moines land bill over the president's veto by a vote of 34 to 15.

GOLD

A Large Increase in the Precious Metals Recorded.

San Francisco Chronicle.

The United States mint is now closed to the public for its annual clean up, and to counteract a prevailing impression that the product of precious metals on this coast is on the decrease the Selby Smelting and Lead company has issued a circular containing a comparative statement from the mint records of the gold coinage of the San Francisco mint for the first eleven months of the fiscal years 1884-5 and 1885-86, which shows the coinage during those months as follows:

	1884-5.	1885-86.
Double eagles	$1,100,000	$6,000,000
Eagles	9,000	[illegible] 000
Half eagles	10,[illegible]00	1,[illegible],000
Total	$1,[illegible],550	$[illegible],5[illegible]0,000

For the corresponding period in 1883-84 the coinage was $16,[illegible] thus showing an increase in 1885-86 over [illegible] and in 1885-86 [illegible] 42,000 over the previous fiscal year.

The Selby smelting and lead company is the only gold and silver refinery on this coast outside of the United States mint, and during the twelve months ending May 31, 1886, its deposits in the mint in fine gold from it were as follows:

[illegible] 1885	[illegible]	[illegible]

THE EAST.

Rousseau's Report on the Panama Canal.

MANNING WILL POSITIVELY RETIRE

New Hampshire Democracy in Convention—A Strange Story from Illinois—Another Version of the Affair from Colombia

NEW YORK, June 29.—The Herald says: The text of the report of M. Rousseau on the De Lesseps canal company has at last been officially promulgated. Our Paris correspondent sends us its substance by cable. While it now by no means justifies the extravagant assurances of De Lesseps to the public that it would explicitly recommend an assent to his company's petition for official authority to raise a lottery loan of [illegible] francs, neither does it positively condemn the proposition, as has been asserted of it in some quarters, though the fact that the ministry of public works has prepared and proposed a bill to authorize the lottery since the report came into its possession, was a warrant to infer that its intent was not altogether unfavorable. Rousseau thinks that De Lesseps is in [illegible] of completion in 1889 is "more than probable," without alteration of the present engineering plans and even granting money without limit. As to the money, in a vague kind of way he advises some indefinite kind of governmental aid—diplomatic support being the only species he distinctly specifies,—declaring that the abandonment of the canal by M. De Lesseps's company would not only be a "terrible disaster" to the French share owners and bondholders, but also to French influence in America, and says that foreigners would surely take up the enterprise. Unless, however, the government can control the plans and contracts, he does not deem a financial guaranty prudent in consideration of the uncertain chances of the investment ever being pecuniarily profitable. It appears that a very large majority of the members of the committee having the government's bill in charge are inclined to an adverse report, and many of them feel sure that the bill will be defeated, and France kept out of international complications touching this canal.

MANNING WILL POSITIVELY RETIRE.

NEW YORK, June 29.—World's Albany special: Among the best informed politicians here it has been known for a long time that Secretary Manning has been using every honorable means for six months to retire from the cabinet. To his most intimate friends the secretary has made complaint that instead of finding the treasury department a field for great executive work, it has proven for him simply a clerical position, whose most important and trying exaction was signing his own name. Six months' trial of this irksome and annoying place has convinced the secretary that his sphere of usefulness was circumscribed, as the president was determined to follow Andrew Jackson's policy and reduce his cabinet officers to the level of mere clerks. One of Manning's most intimate friends said this evening: "Manning will retire from the cabinet October 1 whether his health is improved or no. He went into the cabinet against his own judgment. Cleveland would never have appointed him had not Tilden ordered him to do so, nor would Manning have accepted the position had it not been at Tilden's request. Secretary Manning has been forced to explain to his friends who had wanted favors done that he was tired of asking the president to render some service to his party. Within a month I have seen a letter conveying this impression. Manning's policy from the first has been to reward party men, but every approach toward the president on that head has been met with coldness, discouragement and positive indifference."

NEW HAMPSHIRE DEMOCRATS.

CONCORD, N. H., June 29.—The democratic convention was called to order this morning by the chairman of the state committee. A large number of delegates and spectators were present.

A resolution expressing sympathy with Gladstone in his home rule struggle was unanimously adopted, and it declared the home rule right of states to regulate their domestic affairs to be the democratic doctrine upon which this nation is founded.

The platform pledges support to President Cleveland's administration and congratulates him upon its success; declares devotion to the doctrines set forth in the last democratic national platform; that federal taxation shall be exclusively for public purposes and shall not exceed the needs of the government, economically administered, and readjustment of the tariff is asked for on that basis; demands that the rights of labor be fostered and that all laws prejudicial to labor be repealed; favors the principle of arbitration in the settlement of differences between labor and capital; demands a ten hour law and weekly payments in all manufacturing establishments.

The first ballot for governor resulted in the nomination of Thomas Cogswell of Gilmanton. A resolution was adopted indorsing the efforts of President Cleveland and Congressmen Morrison and Carlisle and their democratic colleagues, to revise existing tariff laws.

A STRANGE STORY.

CHICAGO, June 29.—Charles H. Fox of Rockford, Ills., has brought suit in the circuit court against George W. Noble for an accounting. Fox is a grandson of Wm. H. Price, who left this city [illegible] during the gold fever of [illegible], and has never been heard from since. When Price left he was the owner of planing mill property in this city worth about $[illegible],000, which he left in care of his brother-in-law, George W. Noble, who was to conduct the same in trust and pay off the indebtedness. The complainant alleges that Noble was poor when he assumed the management of the business and that it was always the belief of the Price family that the father was foully dealt with. Fox gives it as his belief that the death was caused through a conspiracy in which Noble, Walker and Wheeler were implicated, and that as a result Noble, by further conspiring, managed to secure possession of all the Price estate. Noble died December [illegible], 1885, having an estate of which Wm. T. Eaton and Albert C. Noble are administrators.

BROTHERHOOD OF RAILWAY POSTAL CLERKS.

INDIANAPOLIS, June 29.—A meeting of the grand lodge of the Brotherhood of Railway Postal Clerks will be held in this city on Friday, which promises to be largely attended. Advices have been received from all subordinate lodges, with few exceptions, stating that their representatives will be present. The object is to select a committee to visit Washington and wait on the postmaster general for the purpose of procuring from him a definite statement as to what the clerks may expect in future as to their official tenure. An officer of the brotherhood states that this committee will surely be sent, despite the action already taken by the department in removing clerks, and the intention of the organization will not be changed, even if [illegible] further remarks be made before the meeting of Friday.

BEECHER REACHES LONDON.

NEW YORK, June 29.—Henry Ward Beecher and Mrs. Beecher arrived in London to-day. They were met at the depot by Dr. Parker, pastor of the City temple, and his wife, and given a most affectionate greeting. Dr. Parker led Mrs. Beecher to his carriage and Beecher followed with Mrs. Parker. The party went at once [illegible] to Dr. Parker's house in St. John's Wood. Beecher is in good health, but says he intends to rest before returning or preaching. He is to-day of the great treat enjoyed by him at [illegible] yesterday of listening to Gladstone's [illegible] oration, and of watching the enthusiasm of the vast audience.

STATEMENT BY MINISTER JACOB'S SON.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., June 29.—Charles D. Jacob, son of the minister to Colombia, reached home to-night. From his statement of his father's trouble with Consul King, at Bogota, it is gathered that King attacked him viciously in a [illegible] newspaper, and that afterward, when he called him to account for it, King replied mockingly and insultingly, and Mr. Jacob [illegible] slapped his face. In the fight which followed it is stated that the consul was soundly thrashed by the minister.

COL. FOLSOM'S WILL.

NEW YORK, June 29.—The Tribune's Warsaw special says: The will of late Col. J. B. Folsom, of Folsom Dale, was offered for probate yesterday. The property amounts in value to $[illegible]. The will divides the property among his eight grandchildren, share and share alike. Thus it will be seen that unless the property increases in value as it is expected to do, the president's wife will only receive $20,000, instead of $[illegible],000 as was reported.

THE TOWNSEND WILL CASE.

NEW ORLEANS, June 29.—In the famous Kate Townsend will case Judge Houston to-day rendered a decision decreeing the will of Kate Townsend in favor of Troisville Sykes null and void, because Sykes was guilty of ingratitude (he having killed Kate Townsend) and thereby forfeited all benefits under the will, giving judgment in favor of the state of Louisiana, and decreeing the state to be heir at law of the deceased.

BELLIGERENT CARPENTERS.

CHICAGO, June 29.—Squads of union carpenters belonging to what is known as the socialist branch of the carpenters' union made three assaults to-day on the carpenters in this city who were employed on a building in course of erection, because they were working ten hours. Three of the assaulted men are seriously injured. No arrests have been made by the police.

Caught on the Bounce.

W. A. Croffut in Washington Post.

I asked James G. Blaine, the day after the Burchard "Rum, Romanism and Rebellion" incident, why it was that he did not retort on the spot and condemn the utterance as un-American. "Because," he said, "I thought nobody had noticed it. There were three or four little speeches by other clergymen after Burchard's and nobody took any notice of his lapse, which I felt was a blunder at the moment it was uttered. Now, if I notice it, I thought to myself, it will recall what has probably passed into oblivion. So I let it slide." I have been told that the New York World had the odious phrase in type before Mr. Blaine's disastrous caucus of clergymen had adjourned.

Prognosticating the Future.

New York Tribune.

First, Mr. Cleveland is aware that he could not get the democratic nomination in 1888 if he wanted it. He is precluded, by his own formal declaration against a second term, from accepting it if he could get it. In 1888 the democracy will naturally be looking for a man on whom they can unite. Cleveland has shown himself not to be that man. If the party were to be looking for a man on whom they could most successfully divide, why then Cleveland would be renominated unanimously by acclamation on the first ballot—if not earlier.

Is It Really Consumption?

Many a case supposed to be radical lung disease is really one of liver complaint and indigestion, but unless that diseased liver can be restored to healthy action it will so clog the lungs with corruption, as to bring on their speedy decay, and then indeed we have consumption, which is scrofula of the lungs, in its worst form. Nothing can be more happily calculated to nip this danger in the bud than is Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery." By druggists.

GENERAL NEWS.

Another Opium Seizure at San Francisco.

TWO BIG FIRES IN CALIFORNIA.

Beecher and Gladstone's First Meeting—Mrs. Mackay Dines the Prince of Wales—Fight With Burmese Rebels

SAN FRANCISCO, June 29.—John Grant and Fred Brand were arrested last night by Cohn T. Fogarty, Collector Hager's secretary, as they were leaving the house on Brannan street of Mrs. Mary Silcer, one of the lady inspectors in the custom house. The men carried a valise, in which was found forty cans of opium, worth about $500. It is stated that Mrs. Silcer, who is a widow with four children, has been in the habit of concealing opium in her clothing and carrying it ashore from different vessels, and then disposing of it through the men arrested. Extraordinary developments are expected.

Mrs. Silcer was suspended this afternoon from the customs service and arrested on a warrant sworn to by Surveyor Tinnin, bail being set at $1000. Grant and Brand were taken before United States Commissioner Sawyer and held to answer. Grant furnished bonds, but Brand was unable to do likewise. Mrs. Alice Griffin, stewardess of the steamship Gaelic, was also arrested this afternoon on a charge of being concerned in smuggling opium with the others previously arrested to-day.

GRAIN SACK EMBEZZLEMENT.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 29.—Private detectives have just concluded working up the case of the embezzlement of between 150,000 to 200,000 grain sacks, valued at $13,000, from the Union street warehouse prior to 1884. The guilt has been placed on Edward H. Cawley, who, up to the time stated, was foreman of the warehouse. The detectives have located Cawley in San Luis Obispo. He will be arrested at once.

A dispatch was received to-day announcing the arrest of Cawley in San Luis Obispo. One of the detectives to-day traced about $8000 in certificates, payable at the San Luis Obispo bank, which had been procured by Cawley at several banks here.

EXPIATED HIS CRIME.

STOCKTON, June 29.—Eliza Finley French, who murdered Peter Wells at Oleata, Amador county, March 14, 1884, was hanged here this afternoon in the jail yard. French joined the Catholic church ten days ago. At 8 this morning the last rites of the church were administered to him. He ate and smoked this morning, and was cheerful to the last, but regretted the fate of himself and his victim. He had nothing to say on the scaffold. The drop broke his neck, and there was no struggling. He was buried immediately from St. Mary's church.

ENGLAND.

GLADSTONE GROWS POETIC.

LONDON, June 29.—Gladstone, in the course of his speech delivered yesterday at Liverpool, said: "It was here that I first drew breath. I have drawn it now [illegible] years. The time is not distant when I shall pay my debt to nature, and these possibly are the last words I shall speak in Liverpool." Gladstone quoted from the Ballad of the Chase: "The child unborn shall rue the hunting of that day," and exclaimed: "If idle and shallow pretexts bewilder the mind of the people or if the power of wealth and rank overbear national sense, the child unborn shall rue the voting of that day. I entreat you to resolve that the civilized world shall no longer assert that Ireland is England's Poland, and to determine that England shall no longer have a Poland. She has had it long enough. [illegible] prudence, courage and honor; ring out the old, ring in the new; ring out the notes of memory and discord; ring in the blessed reign of a time of peace."

BEECHER'S FIRST MEETING WITH GLADSTONE.

NEW YORK, June 29.—World's Liverpool cable special: Gladstone and Beecher met for the first time last night. Their mutual greeting was full of interest to the few onlookers. When they came forward together upon the platform at the Gladstone meeting there was a demonstration such as the United Kingdom has not witnessed in any recent political campaign. Gladstone made a masterly address lasting more than an hour and a half. There were then renewed and lusty cries of "Beecher, Beecher, speech," but good taste forbade it for that occasion, at least, and Beecher made his escape after a struggle through the platform throng that insisted on shaking hands with him. Liberal admirers of Gladstone asked Beecher what he thought of the premier's speech. "There is nothing to be said about it," he replied. "Silence is the most eloquent comment I can make upon it."

PORTLAND WEDNESDAY JUNE 30 1886

ASPECTS OF THE LIQUOR QUESTION IN OREGON

If the fight against the liquor traffic, which promises to be a leading issue before the people of this state in the near future, were to be carried on solely by the comparatively small class who regard the manufacture, sale and consumption of intoxicating drinks as criminal per se, there would be small need for the liquor dealers to be disturbed about the matter. As a class prohibitionists are men wholly absorbed in this one question, and having brought themselves to regard drunkenness as the one great crime, inasmuch as it is the instigator and promoter of all the others, and by a strange process of reasoning to look upon total abstinence as the one chief virtue, they are willing, for the time, at least to make sacrifice of every other consideration to attain their desired end. To such men the qualifications of candidates, their capacity, or even their integrity, are of little moment provided they be committed in favor of prohibition. Experience has pretty plainly shown that such men as a rule are not able either to devise or formulate such legislation as will accomplish their purpose or any other good purpose. Deriding and denouncing as infamous compromises and bargains with sin all efforts to restrain and regulate the traffic, they set up their standard and write upon it 'Prohibition or nothing,' and not unfrequently have they deliberately lent their aid to the advocates of "free whisky" in defeating salutary measures for the restriction of the traffic.

Fortunately for the world these are not the only men who are likely to take a hand in this fight. There is a class of men, a numerous and influential class, who do not consider it necessarily a crime against God or their fellow man either to make or use alcoholic liquors, provided the use be not to excess, who nevertheless are not blinded to the evils resulting from their immoderate use, nor to the great danger that their constant use will result in excess and ruin, and who, as a measure of prudence for themselves or for the benefit of others, abstain entirely from their use. Like St. Paul they distinguish between things "lawful" and things "expedient," and are willing to relinquish their rights under the law when reason or experience shows them that it is 'not expedient' to insist upon them. Such men naturally hesitate to give their support to measures looking to the suppression of the traffic, while they are entirely willing to put upon it such restrictions as good order and decency require.

In their endeavors to promote the public good by so regulating and restraining the trade in intoxicating drinks as to reduce the evil effects to the minimum, they are joined by another but entirely different class of citizens who are neither by principle nor practice teetotallers. In numbers influence and wealth these are perhaps stronger than either of the former classes. They see no reason why they should deny themselves in the matter [illegible] the business in respect [illegible].

The breech [illegible] be fairly assumed to comprise the population of our state exclusive of the drunken, [illegible] and criminal classes. [illegible] would seem to be [illegible] affairs that would [illegible] solid party for the suppression of the liquor traffic. But such a union is no impossible, nor is the event, if we may trust present indications, very far in the future, and strange to say, the liquor dealers themselves have done more to bring about such a union than an army of temperance lecturers could have effected.

To those who are accustomed to look only upon the surface of things, it has been a matter of great surprise that the liquor-dealing fraternity should, by their impertinent and offensive intermeddling in the late political contests, run the risk of arousing a united public sentiment against them and their peculiar 'industry.' It is possible that they may have failed to count the cost, that they underrated the effect their conduct would have upon those classes from whom they had hitherto received a greater or less degree of toleration. But even with a full knowledge of the result, it is more than probable that they would have followed the same line of conduct, braving the consequences. And if no other question than their own interest were to be considered they would have been perfectly justified in so doing.

It is probable that no other pursuit embraces so great a variety of individual character, or so many degrees of intelligence, wealth and social and business standing as the liquor business. From the millionaire distiller of 'favorite brands' down to the lowest dive keeper, every possible shade of personal character and gradation of respectability—or the lack of it—is represented. It cannot be denied that among them are men of culture and refinement, of trained intelligence and [illegible] strange to say, they were [illegible] greater surprise [illegible] furnishing [illegible] for the defense.

In the light of recent events [illegible] majority of good citizens begin to see their error. It is now apparent and the proof is furnished by the dealers themselves that as against every other consideration, religious, moral, political or social, the interest of the wealthiest and most respectable of those engaged in the traffic, is that of the lowest and most depraved. 'You are fighting for your own,' says the liquor dealers' manifesto, and the leading men in the business could have given no stronger proof that they recognize the community of interest [illegible]. The liquor men have [illegible] the issue [illegible]. They propose to act as a unit against every species of legislation looking to the restriction of the traffic or a limitation of the consumption [illegible] their community. To them the suppression of the dive means a diminution of the demand, affecting in their turn both jobber and manufacturer, and no question of public order, good morals or individual welfare is in their estimation to be considered.

By their aggressive conduct the liquor men have, as has before been said, done more to arouse a sentiment of hostility than all the efforts of prohibitionists in years past. It is seen and heard on every side. Men of all shades of political opinion unite in declaring that the public enemy must be destroyed. Men who never signed a temperance pledge in their lives join heartily in petitioning the legislature to enact laws for the suppression of the business, and the prohibition vote, largely made up as it was of the disaffected of both parties, who used it as a means of 'throwing off,' would to-day be more than doubled and every vote would 'mean business.'

MEN MUST ASK HER

We observe that in Washington territory the women did not, in some places, come out to vote and that in other places their vote was about equally divided. There is nothing surprising in this, for women it will be found in the long run will in politics, behave very much like men. A great many men are indifferent to the exercise of the right of suffrage and men of equal intelligence, intellect and purity are often found divided in their views as to the proper legal means to the end of abating the evil of intemperance. The majority of the woman suffrage sisterhood are earnest, intelligent and upright. But good men and true often find themselves in the minority when they try to make their faith part of the law of the land. Of course a pure minded enthusiast can always ejaculate when repulsed, 'One with God is a majority,' but unfortunately the very question in dispute is not whether the radical reformer honestly thinks he is walking with God, but whether he actually is with God, and therefore in the long run sure to be in the moral majority. There is no denial of natural right when woman suffrage is refused; there is not even a declaration that in the future it may not be a wise and salutary thing for the state to grant this sweeping enlargement of the suffrage. It is simply saying that it does not seem a wise or expedient thing now, whatever verdict the next generation may pass upon it.

There are at present no burning wrongs of woman that are likely to be happily adjusted by unlimited suffrage. There is a needless injustice in refusing women owning property in their own name the right to vote in all municipal meetings which decide questions of public expenditure, to pay which these women will be taxed. This right women already exercise in England and Scotland. Many women who do not care for unlimited suffrage would welcome the privilege of voting the taxes they are obliged to pay. Unqualified, unlimited suffrage finds strongest opposition in the indifference and positive hostility of women themselves. When the same womanly public opinion that touches every decent man at home with the influence of its moral suasion stands up to say modestly but firmly to their fathers, brothers, husbands and friends, "We honestly think it would be better for society if we had the ballot, unlimited, to use at our discretion," that moment the ballot would be won, but no considerable number of women say it; on the contrary the vast mass of intelligent, good women are opposed to it. They are no better nor truer women than the few who want it, but they so vastly outnumber them that unlimited suffrage for women seldom wins a victory. The work that is wanted on this subject is not legislation by men; it is evangelical work among the women. The great majority of men who lead in politics and shape legislation through their intelligence are not at all disposed to argue that there is any thing unwomanly in the aspiration for suffrage [illegible] exercise, but they question fairly the expediency of making a radical enlargement of the suffrage in the call of a few advanced thinkers and thrust up upon the sex a gift that arouses no general desire, nay is absolutely repulsive to the great majority of women, not a majority merely of dolls and dudes in flounces and furbelows, but a majority intelligent, upright and thoughtful. The answer of the suffragists to this objection is that we conferred freedom upon the slave without consulting the desires of the majority. That is true, but there is no identity between an appeal for the natural rights of life and liberty, a question of eternal right, and the question of enlarging the ballot, a mere matter of present wisdom, safety and expediency. Lincoln did not grant liberty to the slave primarily as a matter of justice. It was a war measure thrust upon Lincoln by the stern exigencies of the hour, not primarily by any spirit [illegible] right [illegible] great wrong. Lincoln wrote Greeley that he would save the Union with slavery or without it as best he could. The slave was given the ballot in uniform during the war and the ballot after the war from the same selfish impulse that welcomed the black bosom that stood between the draft and our own skin and the skin of all our kin, that welcomed the black man as a voter because his ballot at the South would keep the republican party in the White house, which it did so long as it kept a bayonet behind the ballot. We treated this question of eternal right as a mere question of self interest and national preservation; we treated the question of negro suffrage as a matter of partisan advantage to help us hold the White house, but we are now dealing, not with a national emergency or selfish party advantage, but with a mere question whether it will be a safe and wise means to abate the present evils of our excessive male suffrage, which is the very fire-blight of free institutions from ocean to ocean, by opening the doors to the women. The belief that the ballot will right every wrong is the source of a flood of sweeping and sentimental legislation, concerning all sorts of social reforms, to which its province is but supplemental, instead of creative, and a woman clothed with a vote that she needs to be compelled to cast is not the kind of voter that can do herself or her country any service, and because an intelligent interest and a desire to vote has not in all cases hitherto antedated the gift of the ballot is no reason for the swelling the ranks of those who, from lack of desire or interest in public affairs, cannot be [illegible] upon to use it with intelligence or discretion. The [illegible] broke the negro's fetters, because the Union had need of him [illegible] any other necessity it was [illegible] this [illegible] advantage in persuading women [illegible] then women will vote for the good reason that men want them to vote, and the average woman is generally willing to do what the man she loves and trusts asks her to do. Under the stress of political rivalries and sectarian jealousy men would ask and women would yield [illegible] self interest what they would never surrender to ordinary agitation and discussion of woman suffrage. In some such emergency it will come, if it ever comes at all, and then when the mass of men, rather than a few women ask the women to vote, the women will consent to vote promptly, for the average woman is always more willing to please her brother or her lover than to [illegible] from anybody's sister.

The cities and large towns in Washington territory gave, in the aggregate, about 300 majority against prohibition. Returns from the country are meager as yet, but it is not expected that majorities for prohibition will [illegible] enough to counterbalance this opposition vote. It should not be forgotten that in many country precincts which would undoubtedly give prohibition majorities no election was held, there being no occasion in such precincts to vote for or against prohibition of a traffic that does not exist.

From such meager data as we have of it, Mr Randall's tariff bill looks like a measure designed to defeat anything like effective tariff reform. The proposition to cut down the internal revenue is a scheme to make a foreign tariff a necessity as a source of national income.

Has Mr Paul Schulze or the corporation which employs him, any conception of the shameless impropriety of his conduct in trying to control the expression of public sentiment in this state and Washington territory?

A GOOD MAN GONE WRONG

John R Smith of Jersey City, late treasurer of the domestic missions of the Reformed Church, is a defaulter to his trust to the amount of about $25,000, which he has appropriated during his twenty years of service. Smith is 60 years old, has borne a good reputation and he never lived in an extravagant manner. Smith was no a tramp rascal, spouting forged checks here and there, dodging from pillar to post—a vulgar villain without honorable history or home anywhere, without legal title to the name he sported, a characterless rogue cheating a community. He was a man of high intelligence, education and outward respectability. He must have been intelligent and reputable to have gained the grant of public confidence implied by his position. Church missions do not elect drunkards nor stupids to handle their money, nor is any man of dissolute, characterless life selected for a trust that involves the control of money! What was the matter with this man? He had education enough of the sort given in schools; he was surrounded by churches enough; his social station and public repute was of the sort that is usually a powerful and conservative restraint upon the conduct of the average citizen. The cynic will answer that Smith was

> A pious conscientious rogue
> As e'er wore bonnet or a brogue,
> Who neither swore nor kept his word
> But cheated in the fear of God.

The more charitable and popular explanation of these breaches of trust on part of men whose personal habits are pure, whose lives are domestic, whose instincts, judged by the church offices and Sunday school responsibilities they hold, are pious, is the theory of taking a few dollars which you expect to replace, then borrowing a little more, until finally the theft can no longer be bridged; the mine the unfortunate man has dug under himself is fired and up he goes, ruined in fortune and character, a special object for the sneers of the irreverent and uncharitable, because his fall makes the church he once adorned flutter and the Sunday school he once marshaled shiver. This theory of goodness that is unexpectedly blasted by sudden temptation will hardly hold water. Of course these are exceptional persons, who are born with an absolute moral vacancy, but the ordinary run of men do not suddenly become scoundrels; the process is one of slow disintegration; the first pure moral bloom of youthful ingenuousness gets rubbed off the surface of integrity, leaving nothing underneath but that spurious honesty which is honesty only so long as it seems policy, which is sure to be dishonesty if there seems to be little chance of detection, or if detected, small chance of punishment. In short it is that state where there is no sense of pain for any sin unless the sin finds you out in this world and costs you substantial suffering in situation and salary lost, or the loss of all your honest gains in your corrupt campaign after dishonest wealth. Commonplace commercial morality has taken the place of true spiritual horror of wrong doing, because it is wrong, because it is painful to you, whether you win or lose, whether the world knows it or never knows it, when, we say, this insensibility to sin unless it costs you some material loss in this world has become the daily mood and philosophy of any man's mind, the defenses of his honesty are already undermined, no matter if he may not yet have actually sold his collar for the moment that temptation asks one who is ripe for surrender. The first temptation that comes is the torch in his hand to fire the mine. It is common to call these men hypocrites on the ground that a man with theft in his heart has no honest business in church or Sunday school, and that therefore the outward decorum and display of these men is only a cloak and a shield of hypocrisy. It is no necessary to believe this; not necessary to thus explain a natural relish for the decencies of life by the presumed workings of internal fiend-like depravity and craft. The outward preference for decent and virtuous habits is really the best and sincerest part of such men, and they were sit[illegible] by the eternal atmosphere they moved in in church and out of it, which makes money and little else the criterion of social respectability and honor. The man has been taught to consider wealth the crown of existence, that fine gold discounts fine character, that, with gold enough foul character can be plated into a shining glory of seductive shame. He has come to believe that with the loss of money there is nothing left us under God, worth living for. He has been lured to destruction through the loss of that spiritual enthusiasm that counts it better to have so lived in this world that it is a little gladder and warmer because of you than to have by any indirection rolled up vast riches. This materialism that wars on all our spiritual forces is what sows the seed of the awful annual crop of respectable defaulters, embezzlers, forgers and frauds. The boy who is early taught to worship gold as God, as the touchstone of every thought and feeling, is in great danger, if he lives long enough, of robbing somebody to get it. It's not enough to tell a boy not to drink, to be chaste and church going if you let him grow up with the conviction that his highest mission is to make a million; if you hail a stroke of successful scoundrelism with ill concealed admiration; sneer only at the clumsy rascal who fails and denounce no rich rascal except the bright particular rascal who happens to take your private scalp and hang it at his war girdle. It is not enough to make the penitentiary and the technical circle of the law the only moral limit to human conduct. When fathers [illegible] joy and pride in a boy who would scorn to [illegible] our wrongly won [illegible] who would scorn to [illegible] in disgust [illegible] moral moorings we shall have [illegible] what all the books in the world cannot do. We shall have buttoned them on that noble and inspiring public opinion which says that great wealth is welcome only when it has been honorably won, [illegible] certain then to be ready [illegible]. We teach our young to [illegible] wealth [illegible] the boys [illegible] make a million [illegible] girls to marry [illegible]. The atmosphere of the grove is stifling with [illegible] selfishness [illegible] wearisome with the [illegible] who [illegible] their civilization [illegible]. If this philosophy [illegible] the school and the home there would be many bright men drinking in the sunlight of freedom in a domestic atmosphere of peace and purity who are today feeding on their own hearts in a prison cell or eating the bitter bread of exile in a foreign land. When the toil is all over and we are ready for the 'dark house' and the long sleep, what of all our accumulations can we take with us? Not fame, surely; not gold; and we find our possessions reduced down to what we may call our blessed memories. The love bestowed by father and mother, the love exhaled toward wife and child, the sturdy friends who have been to us both tender and true, the poor we have helped and the good causes we have defended against the world—these are the sort of impalpable but immortal acquisitions that are to bear us company in our solemn flight, if we have not been sordid enough to shake them off in our mad pursuit of power. It pays then, therefore to teach the child that when wealth is sped there is good work to do and happiness to be won; that only when honor dies the man is dead.

At a special meeting last night the board of trade righted itself in respect to the doings of last Thursday by adopting a series of resolutions declaring the former proceeding to be not only illegal but in violation of the "feelings and wishes of the board," and directing the secretary to expunge from the records of the board the so-called "resolutions," protesting against forfeiture of the Northern Pacific land grant, and approving the course of Senators Dolph and Mitchel. This action, embarassing as it was, was the only decent way out of an awkward and false position. Honesty required it, and the business community as a body recognized it as a necessity. It is to be noted, however, that the interest which by a dishonest trick worked through the 'resolutions' in the first instance, having misrepresented our people, was shamefully active in trying to muzzle the natural protest. Mr Paul Schulze, the representative of the Northern Pacific railroad here, and the author of the original "resolutions," was about all day yesterday drumming up such members of the board as could be persuaded to "stand in" with him. But with all his activity he was not able to find a sufficient number to stifle an indignant public spirit.

LOCAL AND GENERAL.

ALLEGED OBSTRUCTION OF THE MAILS.—In the U. S. circuit court yesterday James P. Bewley, an old farmer of Yamhill county, was tried before the court without jury for obstructing the passage of the U. S. mail. J. W. Kuns, who drives stage between McMinnville and Sheridan, and two of the Bewley family had a little squabble a while back because the Bewleys were hauling some logs across the stage road, and did not do so with sufficient alacrity to suit Kuns. On a second occasion James Bewley met Kuns on the same road while driving along in a buggy and they had another tilt, and according to the statement made by Bewley, Kuns, just after he passed, turned and fired two shots at him. A little girl who lives about a quarter of a mile from where the trouble occurred says she heard four shots. It is claimed on one side that each fired two shots at the other, and Kuns, to prove his story, exhibited a coat with two bullet holes in it. Bewley claims he hasn't carried a pistol or like weapon in forty years, and had two creditable witnesses swear they heard but two shots. Those he claims Kuns fired. Bewley is an old and well known citizen and bears a good reputation. The case was taken under advisement.

CRUSHED AGAIN.—At the meeting of the board of trade last night, Perkes, the orator, was again sat down on. It was during roll-call on one of the votes. When the name of Allen & Lewis was called, John C. Lewis voted. Perksey challenged his vote. Schulze inquired of Lewis "are you a member of the firm?" and Mr Lewis answered "none of your business." Now John C. is one of the few members who attend all the meetings, does good committee work, and is the recognized representative of the house of Allen & Lewis in the board. That Perksey showed the bad taste to question his right to vote, nettled every one in the room except Perksey. Some one moved that the vote be accepted. There was "second the motion" from twenty voices, and on the vote being put it was unanimous, not even Perksey raising his voice in opposition. The great English orator did not have a word to say the remainder of the evening.

THROWN FROM A HORSE.—The return of Miss Egbert, the pianist, from New York via the isthmus was announced in these columns a few weeks ago. Soon after her return she went with Mr and Mrs John Crum to Clatsop in order to enjoy a few more weeks of salt air and better prepare herself for the earnest professional work which she contemplated. Her many friends will regret to learn that during her sojourn at the seaside she was thrown from a horse by the breaking of the girth while riding, and severely injured. The young lady was brought back to the city on Saturday last, and is now under the care of Dr. H. E. Jones, who has given implicit orders that "for the present she must be kept perfectly quiet."

VAGRANT WOMAN.—An old woman who may have been noticed on the streets for the past few weeks clad in rags and carrying a well filled sack over each shoulder, was arrested last night by policeman Parkler and as a vagrant. Since her arrival here she has been industriously engaged in begging whisky from saloons, clothing and food from dwellings, and has got to be an intolerable nuisance. She was shipped over here from some point in Washington territory. The city authorities will look into the matter to-day and determine what is best to be done. It is not the intention to incarcerate her in jail, but to provide her with quarters of some description and keep her off the streets. She gives the name of Mary Blakely.

SEND A SAMPLE.—A day or two since THE OREGONIAN mentioned that not a single Columbia river shad had been seen in Portland this season. The Astorian says: "Fact is they were so good this season we kept 'em down here and didn't let a single specimen get away. Come down and get one, planked, with his tail shaking. It is not worth while to go down on the bare chance of getting one shad. This office has a shad plank presented by Mr. George Washington Welle, which is three feet wide and sixty seven feet long. Just send up a sample of the shad enough to fill a plank, and if they are so good, a delegation will come down at once and eat Megler out of house and home and close up the shad business for this season.

THE HOLIDAY SEASIDE EXCURSION.—About 500 persons will arrive to-day on the O. R. & N. R., as nearly as can be estimated, by the Christian church excursion who will most of them take the Olympian for Astoria, Fort Canby, Ilwaco and Clatsop to-morrow (Thursday) at 7:30 A. M. The merchants and business men of Portland ought to, and will many of them show their friends and customers from the interior sufficient courtesy, and the church that has gotten up this excursion, which is of such manifest benefit to the city, a sufficient appreciation of their efforts to go with them, even though it be necessary for them to return Friday morning. A very pleasant time may be thus had as well.

SOUVENIRS FOR THE CHILDREN.—The Fourth of July committee respectfully request the co-operation of the parents of school children by sending them to rehearsal for the singing exercises on the day of the celebration. There will be a rehearsal at the Masonic hall at 2 o'clock to-day (Wednesday), and one at 4 P. M. Saturday, July 3, under W. H. Kinross's supervision. The children will be properly cared for. At the close of the exercises each child participating will receive a handsome souvenir. To make this feature a success the committee would like as many children as possible.

STATE SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION.—There will be a mass meeting of the Sunday school workers of Oregon held in the Gospel Tabernacle, commencing Sunday, July 11, and closing Tuesday, July 13. R. F. Jacobs of Chicago, Rev. J. F. Gilbert, D. D., of Indianapolis, Rev. J. A. Worden of Philadelphia, and Henry Plumb, Esq., of Minneapolis, all eminent Sunday school workers, will be present and take prominent parts in the work of the convention. Reduced rates have been secured over the O. R. & N. R. for those desiring to attend along the line of that road.

THE BAPTIST EXCURSION.—Celebrating in the pure open air of the country is far more enjoyable than remaining in the hot and dusty city. For this reason the young men of the Baptist church have determined to have a celebration of their own, and have chartered the Wide West for a trip to Multnomah falls. All who desire to go along will be heartily welcomed, and everything possible will be done for their comfort. Those desiring can go to the Cascades without extra charge. The boat will return in time for the fireworks in the evening.

SEA MOSSES AND SHELLS.—Those going with the excursion by the Christian church on the [illegible] will find an assortment of sea shells at the point for [illegible] the extreme low [illegible] Friday morning [illegible] mosses [illegible] and [illegible] usually [illegible] very seldom accessible. [illegible] assurance that [illegible] never regret it.

NOT CAUGHT YET.—Monday night burglary and festive burglar entered the residence of Samuel McKee, at 168 Fourth street, between Jefferson and Clay, by means of the kitchen door, in the rear of the building. The fact that the McKee mansion had been visited during the night by an unwelcome guest was discovered in the morning by one of the family finding that the back door and the doors leading to the dining room and sitting room had been opened. Nothing of any particular value was found to be missing.

SENTENCED FOR SELLING LIQUOR ILLEGALLY.—Rena Hayes, a woman of the town, brought from Astoria Saturday last for selling liquor without paying the U. S. internal revenue license, was found guilty as charged by Judge Deady yesterday. She was fined $100, and also committed to the county jail to serve a term of thirty days' imprisonment. She is a young woman, some 18 years of age. It is likely that she will be taken to Astoria to serve out her sentence.

AN UNKNOWN DROWNED.—At half past 9 o'clock the employes of the Stark street ferry found a body floating in the river at the landing on this side. Coroner Goode was notified and took charge of the remains, which proved to be those of a man. The body had been in the water for several months, and was so eaten away as to be unrecognizable. It was buried in the potter's field as unknown.

FAILURES IN THREE MONTHS.—Through the courtesy of the mercantile agency of R. G. Dun & Co. the following statistics have been obtained: For the quarter ending June 28 there were thirty two failures in Oregon, total liabilities, $1[illegible]; assets $1[illegible]. In Washington territory for same period there were eleven failures, total liabilities, $[illegible]; assets, $10,[illegible]

AT THE SEASIDE.—Arrivals at Seaside house to June [illegible]: A. Townsend, Byron Z. Holmes, J. G. Hewson, E. B. Tayleur, Thomas L. Richards, T. J. Johnston, Portland; D. E. Mulligan, San Francisco; Philip Grant, James Collins, Wallula.

Tickets for sale and baggage checked from residences through to Astoria, Ilwaco and Seaside by U. C. & B. T. Co., cor. Second and Stark. Carriages and coupes furnished at any hour.

A BLUNDER CORRECTED.

The Board of Trade Expunge from the Record the Anti-Forfeiture Resolutions.

Last night a special meeting of the board of trade was held in answer to the call published in THE OREGONIAN of Monday and Tuesday. Vice-President Dodd presided, and there was a large attendance of members, the room being crowded.

Secretary Arnold read the call for the meeting.

Paul Schulze asked the secretary to read the names of "many others" signed to the call.

The chair stated that five members were sufficient to call a meeting, and decided Mr Schulze's request out of order. Mr Schulze appealed from the decision of the chair, which was sustained.

Hon. D. P. Thompson offered the following preamble and resolutions and moved their adoption:

WHEREAS, A special meeting of this board was called for the 24th of the present month to consider the matter of rendering aid to the sufferers by the recent fire at Vancouver, British Columbia, which meeting was held in pursuance of such call, and,

WHEREAS, At such meeting resolutions were introduced and passed protesting against the forfeiture of the land grant to the Northern Pacific railroad company appertaining to the uncompleted portion of the Cascade branch of said company's road, and,

WHEREAS, No previous notice had been given to the members present at such meeting and no notice whatever had been given to those not present, that the subject of said resolutions would be presented or considered at such meeting; and

WHEREAS, Article 1 of the constitution of this board provides that no business shall be transacted at a special meeting other than that for which a meeting may be called; and

WHEREAS, The said resolution does not represent the wishes and feelings of a majority of this board; therefore be it

Resolved, By the board of trade of Portland, Oregon, that the action of this board at its said special meeting, protesting against the forfeiture of that portion of the land grant of the Northern Pacific railroad company that relates to the Cascades branch of said company's road was inconsiderate and illegal.

Resolved, That the secretary of the board be and he hereby is directed to expunge said resolutions and the preamble from the records of said meeting.

Resolved, That the president of the board of trade be instructed to telegraph these preambles and resolutions to the president of the senate, the speaker of the house of representatives, Senator Dolph, Senator Mitchell and Representative Hermann.

A. C. A. Perkes said that the meeting of the 24th was not illegal.

Mr Thompson, in support of his motion, declared that the matter had not had full consideration; that the resolution was sprung on the board without notice of any kind; that the rules of the board were not complied with; that only a few members were present, and that the passage of the resolution looked like a trick.

Mr Schulze answered that there was no attempt at trickery, and regarded the insinuation as unjust and uncalled for. Several members of the board were present who were also at the meeting of the 24th, and he would be glad to hear from them. He claimed that the notice for the present meeting was insufficient because it did not state specifically the purpose of the meeting. The resolutions offered by Mr Thompson could not be put before the meeting.

Mr Perkes thought best to let the matter lie over till the next regular meeting.

Ellis G. Hughes stated that any special meeting could correct errors in the record of a previous meeting, hence there could be no question as to the legality of the resolution just introduced.

Mr Schulze called for the ayes and noes. The ballot on the adoption of Mr Thompson's resolution resulted, ayes 38, noes 2[illegible], number not voting [illegible].

A motion to adjourn was lost by a rising vote, 30 to [illegible].

James Steel moved to reconsider the vote by which the resolution was adopted.

Mr Hughes moved to lay the motion on the table; carried on roll call, 38 to [illegible].

A motion to adjourn then prevailed.

FLAG PRESENTATION

Garfield Post G. A. R. Surprised Last Night by their Lady Friends.

Some days ago several ladies, close relatives of members of Garfield post, Grand Army of the Republic, asked Commander H. M. McMasters to call a special meeting for Tuesday evening. The object they said was laudable, but they desired it kept a secret, and they were cautious enough not even to let him in. So he called the meeting, and last night a "quorum" were present. While the commander was waiting to call the meeting to order a knock for admission came and the ladies presented themselves. They were Mrs. J. P. Shaw and Mrs. H. H. Northup, and admission was granted. Mrs. Shaw without any preliminaries, said:

Gentlemen:—In the name of the ladies of Garfield post I ask permission to enter your hall tonight and introduce one of our friends who will explain our presence here. It is said that everything connected with Garfield post is a success except the Ladies' Relief corps; therefore, we come to-night to prove that we have formed a relief corps. I now have the pleasure of introducing Mrs. H. H. Northup, who will present you with the relief.

Mrs. Northup said:

Gentlemen:—A desire has arisen in our minds to take one step which should mark our appreciation of our order and its objects, and this desire has materialized into the shape of a post flag.

We thought best not to present you with a national flag, for although it is the emblem of liberty, equal rights and national unity, yet under its folds men have been mustered whose murderous hands have been raised to strike it down and to destroy that liberty and unity of which that brilliant flag is the symbol.

Therefore we present to you this banner, beneath whose folds no traitor stands, no treason is tolerated. It is a symbol of the principles, loyalty and patriotism. It carries upon its folds the badge which you so proudly display upon your breasts and upon which there is no spot nor stain of treason.

Friends, we are who so closely identified with you honor you for the part you have borne in that great conflict to preserve the life of this nation. We are proud of your honorable record. We thank God that you were spared to enjoy the well earned fruits of your heroism and loyalty and we are [illegible] the right to say, "My father was a Union soldier; my father was a member of the Grand Army of the Republic."

Friends, accept this flag at our hands, and believe us when we say that we honor you and heartily sympathize with you in the sentiment of which it is the emblem.

Commander McMasters was not prepared for the surprise and found himself unequal to the task of responding. He regretted that the post's "silver tongued orator" was absent, and that a proper speech acceptance would therefore have to be dispensed with. On behalf of the post he invited the ladies and their friends to [illegible] the members of the post [illegible] at [illegible] o'clock, at Alisky's [illegible]

KOHN
THE CLOTHIER AND HATTER
Cor. Second and Morrison Streets.

DO YOU KNOW
That our Great Clearance Sale is a Great Success? The reason of it is that we are doing as we advertise. We are selling at the Very Lowest Prices our entire stock, to close out Summer Goods on hand. We have marked our windows full of goods, and we give you the same goods inside our store. We don't throw out baits, as many stores usually do.

DO YOU KNOW
That we are selling Boys' Sailor Suits, nice fine flannel, blue or brown, at $1 75, $2 50 and $3 25, which are really worth double the price?

DO YOU KNOW
That we have a fine line Boys' Imported Cheviot and Tweed Suits, light or dark colors, at 4, 5 and $6, that have always sold at 6, 7 and $8?

DO YOU KNOW
That we have Boys' Waists, new styles and nobby patterns, at 50c, 75c and $1 that you have to pay for elsewhere 1, 1 25 and $1 50?

DO YOU KNOW
That Boys' Knee Pants, separate from suits, are now selling at 75c, 1 and $1 25 which are worth double the price?

DO YOU KNOW
That there are thousands of people who do not read the daily papers, and if they did they could not tell you where KOHN THE CLOTHIER AND HATTER has his immense store?

DO YOU KNOW
Why? Simply because they squander their money at some one-horse concern, who is not up with the times, but who has the same old-time goods that were made 20 years ago.

DO YOU KNOW
Why we have a Clearance Sale twice a year? The reason is, because we have new ideas; we are modern, not ancient, we want New Goods all the time. This is the end of the summer season. We don't want to keep our summer goods to sell in winter. We want to sell them now, and the rush and crowd at our store daily proves to the public at large that we do as we say.

DO YOU KNOW
That we are selling men's summer suits at lower prices than some merchants here can purchase them at?

DO YOU KNOW
That 10, 12, 14 or $15 will buy a Nobby Suit at our store during our clearance sale? We want everybody to call on us, whether they buy or not. No trouble to show goods; plenty of salesmen to attend to all.

DO YOU KNOW
That we are selling Men's and Boys' Straw Hats for half what they are really worth? If you don't believe it, come and see us. If we can't sell you a hat, maybe we will give you one. We have so many Hats that we have to get rid of them some way, and that is why we are selling at such Low Prices.

Our Country Patrons
Will be cared for in the best manner, if they will drop us a line, telling us what they want. We will send them samples of Men's and Boys' Suits and rules for self-measurement. When ordering men's samples give chest measure and state whether for sack or frock coat, and for boys give the age. Our Illustrated Catalogue mailed free to any address.

Klickitat Valley—First Impressions—The Country Fairly Prosperous

GOLDENDALE, W T, June 28

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN

Certain peculiar impressions are always received upon entering and examining a new section of country, and these impressions are governed largely by the season in which the visit is made. But, in truth, these first impressions, as in all the relations and experiences of life, are not to be trusted as the basis of ultimate conclusions. It has been said by some wise one that a man's garments don't make the man, and no doubt this is true. The same idea may be applied to this country (Klickitat) When one reaches Grant's station and looks around upon the adjacent country upon both side of the Columbia river, the impressions are anything but favorable Indeed, one imagines the country is one unfit for any purpose whatever, but in this he finds himself in the wrong

The stage leaves Grant's crosses to the Washington territory side of the river, and grinds slowly and painfully toward Goldendale, and the interior of Klickitat county A considerable forest of trees growing in the sand near Columbia City is the first vegetation that cheers the eye, and contrasts sharply with the adjacent waste and apparent desolation Examination and inquiry develops the fact that this oasis is the result of intelligent work, and shows what may be accomplished in the face of obstacles apparently insurmountable Hard work intelligently applied has produced the pleasing result. As the stage proceeds toward the interior little hamlets, picturesque with and half concealed in green foliage, are seen carved out and developed along the margins of ravines First impressions are now beginning to yield. A passenger on the stage said "Why this sandy soil will produce wonderfully well when water can be gotten on it." Water is found in many of these ravines, and these localities are being worked for all they are worth, and results have been most satisfactory Excellent fruit and vegetables are produced Strawberries, gooseberries and other similar berries are cultivated here with success It is said these small farms yield more ready cash than the large grain plantations At any rate thrift and prosperity are apparent about most of them

We have now reached the summit of the high hills bordering upon the majestic Columbia. A view is now had whose sweep and comprehension is unsurpassed The river sweeps on to the ocean, like a silver thread glistening in the sunlight now breaking over and about the parched hills Toward the northwest Mt. Adams rises grandly above the surrounding mountains, clad in a panoply of snow and flecked with fleecy cloud The distance is forty miles, and yet the air is so clear and pure that we can almost imagine that we can reach our arm forward and take a handful of the cool snow (strong imagination and a long arm) Before us is stretched out in excellent view a portion of the Klickitat valley proper Wooded mountains, running nearly east and west, border the country on the north Intervening are farmhouses and waving fields of grain, promising an excellent average to the farmer By this time first impressions are almost entirely destroyed. Thrift and prosperity are apparently the lot of the people here. The grainfields contrast sharply and suggestively with the occasional uncultivated parched plats. But there are not many of these uncultivated places, the country being well settled, but enough remains to show how unpromising the original appearance of the country was, while the green and thrifty grain shows the soil's real producing capacity Here and there can be seen an ambitious growth of trees upon land taken up under the "timber culture" law the varieties of the trees are many, such being set out as would promise successful growth A farmer tells the writer that timber culture can hardly be regarded as a success in Klickitat valley, although excellent varieties of shade trees have been grown with fair success, and these certainly add largely to the beauty and comfort of the farm house It can hardly be expected that timber will ever be grown in quantities sufficient to avoid the necessity of going to the adjacent mountains for wood and timber both of which are easily obtainable

A rapid superficial look at the Klickitat valley gives the idea that the development of the country has been no easy task, and one that required indomitable energy and unremitting toil There are a large number of men and women living here who came from Multnomah Marion Washington and other counties of the Willamette valley and they have all done fairly well When one looks into the faces of the men, women and children here the spirit of success is manifestly apparent. There is evidence of intelligence and energy upon the faces and in the manner and appearance that cannot be mistaken for anything other than push and life There is here little evidence of indifference or neglect about the farm houses such as is seen often in older and more advanced sections on this coast. The farm houses have been constructed with a view to home comfort and convenience the front gates are generally in order the barns are built with an idea that the stock are justly entitled to shelter and good attention and are usually far enough away from the dwelling houses to avoid the constant reminder of the presence of animals Improvements are being made all over the valley New houses being erected could be seen in most every direction one could look and good substantial barns also are going up all around These of course, are superficial evidence of prosperity and yet may be trusted with a degree of assurance of being correct indications. Talk to any of the farmers in this valley and you will be told—as you will be told most everywhere, for that matter—that they have little money and see little money the year round One of the principal sources of cash has been lost in this country and that is the making and marketing of pork—side and hams. This a few years ago was one of the principal cash industries of this valley and the writer was told that nothing has been done in this line for some time, and nothing can now be done at all A farmer says that he had recently been informed by prominent Portland merchants that they could get side meat from California and from the East much cheaper than Klickitat farmers could possibly afford to sell and also that while Klickitat sides and hams were even superior to the eastern make people would purchase the eastern instead of the home-made When this source of cash was lost a marked depression was the result, from the effects of which many have hardly as yet recovered Grain, hence is the principal source of revenue in this country Much of the profit of this is lost, owing to the manner in which grain has to be handled in order to get the same to market All the grain has to be taken across the river to the Oregon side, and altogether the farmer is hedged in in his efforts to market his grain cheaply Notwithstanding all this the county is substantially prosperous Fruit will undoubtedly be introduced here eventually and this will materially aid the country

GENERAL NOTES

Relating to school matters, it may be remarked that this county is ahead of some of the Oregon counties They require capacity and thoroughness in a teacher A teacher from the East with a first class certificate in this county secures a third class. It may be well to say that a lady occupies with credit the responsible position of superintendent, and this may account for the general efficiency

Goldendale seems fairly prosperous as a country town, is pleasantly situated on the Klickitat river, has two newspapers and a number of mercantile houses The people are contented and determined to improve the town all they can The morality of the place is good

CAMP MEETING AT TURNER.

The annual meeting of the Christian church is held in a beautiful grove near the depot, and was this year largely attended The houses were occupied by families and many tents were erected The weather was very fine and the attendance on one Sunday was estimated by some at about 3000 The order was admirable, the sociability marked, and the preaching and devotional exercises both interesting and profitable The preachers present were Prof Alex Johnstone, Portland J W Webb, Salem I T Stanley, president of Christian college and state normal school Monmouth Prof Bristow, state agricultural college Corvallis D M Doty, Mc Minnville I N Mulkey and Philip Mulkey Pleasant Hill P R Burnett, Monmouth R M Messick state evangelist Elijah Richardson Eastern Oregon J B Roberts Aumsville Peter Shuck, Butte Creek [illegible] Holmum J A S doner Elias We[illegible] and others It was resolved to continue the annual meetings at the same place, and $1 was raised towards building a permanent arbor and a house for the preachers' headquarters The preachers and church officers association was organized and is to meet at the next annual co-operative meeting, to be held probably in Salem, instead of Forest Grove, in the fall There were several converts immersed The following report of the committee on temperance was presented

Resolved That we recommend our churches in their ministry and membership to preach in favor of and personally to adopt the safe and heaven approved practice of total abstinence, and that public warnings and teachings be given from pulpit, press and platform, and particularly in our Sunday schools
